Whatever the size of your family, there's a turkey just the size to fit it for Thanksgiving dinner.

If your family is small, look for a turkey "fryer-roaster". It's a young bird three to four months old and weighing about three to eight pounds. You can fry it, broil it, or stuff and roast it. Whatever your family prefers.

For a middle-size family, select a middle-size bird. You can get roasting hens anywhere from five to 15 pounds. Figure 3/4 pound for each serving. Remember, the bigger the bird, usually the cheaper the price per pound.

If you want to take advantage of economy prices for large birds, have one split. Cook half of it now and freeze the other half for use later. A half turkey roast of seven to 12 pounds will give you 15 to 25 servings at the dinner table.

Roast your turkey in a 325 degree oven. Allow 20 to 25 minutes a pound for a six to 10 pound stuffed turkey, 18 to 20 minutes a pound for a 10 to 16 pound stuffed turkey and 16 to 18 minutes a pound for an 18 to 25 pound stuffed turkey.

and spoon dressing over fruit.

Cranberry Bread
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 cup sugar, 1 1/2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon soda, juice and grated rind of 1 orange, 2 tablespoons melted shortening, 1 egg, well beaten, 1/2 cup chopped nuts, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 2 cups (1/2 pound) fresh cranberries cut in half.

Sift together flour, sugar, baking powder, soda and salt. Combine orange juice, grated rind, melted shortening and enough water to make 1/4 cup juice; then stir in beaten egg.

Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 50 to 60 minutes. Remove from pan. Cool. Store overnight for easy slicing. May be made and frozen for Thanksgiving, Christmas or other occasion.

Probably never in the history of the United States has the economic outlook been so optimistic as it is at present.

It is recognized that the nation is in the midst of an unequalled boom, and Washington economists estimate that the gross national product for 1961 will equal approximately $526 billion — an all-time record.

Ordinarily, during such periods of upsurge, there are warnings which indicate an impending let-down. Also, significant increases in consumer prices usually threaten during boom periods. Neither of these signs of alarm have appeared during the current boom.

While headlines tell of record corporate profits and increased earnings of labor, the President's economic experts predict that prices will hold to approximately present levels. Meanwhile automobile manufacturing and the construction industry are operating at record pace.

If the production of were the only problem connected with economic progress, there would be no room for doubt concerning the optimistic forecasts. The United States has proven that the country has almost unlimited productive potential.

However, the country had such potential in 1930, when we were struck by the greatest depression in history.

Production has no significant meaning to the national economy when consumption becomes stagnant. This is as true in 1961 as it was in 1930.

The consumer must buy before any kind of goods or service contributes to the national economy. He does not buy new products or services until advertising has given him reason. Thus, a promise of new prosperity — from manufacturer to retailer — lies firmly on the ability of advertising to move increased production.

The first symphony orchestra in the United States was organized by Moravian settlers in Bethlehem, Pa., in 1741. Seven years later it had four violins, two violas, two trumpets, two flutes, two french horns, a cello and a double bass.

Winston-Salem, N. C., came into being in 1913 when the communities of Winston and Salem merged into one city.
